===== This app is published by Rowan Stone, www.rowanstone.com and it is available through the Google Play Store. The app requires a free Google+ account. This is free to all. For info and the permissions the app uses, check out the video at the top of the description: Accolades: *Top 100 Apps on Google Play *Social Games category winner *Best Social Networking category winner *Best Entertainment category winner *Best Community, Discussion and Conversation category winner *Notable App of the Week in The Daily Show on Twitter on May 26th Tweetings lets you send tweets from your Windows desktop and even has a desktop version of the app as well. This small free Windows application lets you easily keep track of all your tweets and view the timeline on your desktop in a scrolling fashion. You can add your twitter account by pasting in the username in the app or by adding your Twitter account on the Preferences page. When you launch the application it will give you the option to either have the app read your tweets and have them displayed or have the app auto-populate the timeline with your tweets. If you would rather have the app auto-populate the timeline with your tweets and you prefer a static display then the timeline feature can be switched off. You can now follow and unfollow users from the Preferences page. If you would like to adjust any of the tab settings, go to the Settings page and change the settings as you see fit. If you would like to add custom action items to your tweets, add them here. When you add an action item, a button will appear for you to press next to the tweet content so you can make edits to the tweet. If you are reading or sending a tweet in the app, the URL will be shown at the top of the page and on the page itself. You can now send tweets through the app. The app has a small "unread tweets" count so that you can easily keep track
