It has been an exciting year for FIFA. FIFA is returning to its home country with the new feature “Re-Invigorate Tempo,” and now for the first time ever, EA SPORTS has developed a game engine and gameplay systems that will provide truly authentic “next-gen” football to fans worldwide, both on and off the pitch. Developed by EA Canada, the latest FIFA is based on the FIFA 20 gameplay engine, which was built from the ground-up. This engine was developed for FIFA 18 and features an all-new “Velocity” gameplay system. This new feature allows “ball-carriers” to control their movement and run with the ball, changing their direction and acceleration. Players run even more aggressively and run through more defenders than ever before, creating even more tactics, competitions, and ways to play. New Intelligence and Sensor Based Control The new “AI Steering” feature intelligently controls the ball and surrounding players, staying on the same line, and lining up with passes and dribbling so the ball is in the best position for the next play, no matter where the ball is on the pitch. The “Sensor” feature in the FIFA 22 engine is the most advanced on-line sensor technology ever used in the FIFA series. This new technology allows the game to react to the world around it — whether it’s around the player, or an opponent — by intelligently changing the artificial intelligence (AI) of a player’s actions and behavior. Features Include: New animation system that more accurately reflects the way people play soccer in real life New “Velocity” gameplay system that increases the speed of play and includes new ways to control the ball, such as dribbling, passing, and more 22 real-life athletes, the largest collection of real-world athletes in the history of the FIFA series AI that takes into account player data, allowing it to be more intelligent and adaptive, both on and off the pitch, than ever before All-new “Re-Invigorate Tempo” feature that unlocks new ways to play with the ball, creating tactics and competitions that previously could only be played in a virtual environment “Press” button allows players to simulate the release of the football by tapping the ball with the ballista New “Aerial Duels” feature, which
