NFC North Minnesota Vikings Chicago Bears Detroit Lions Green Bay Packers Check out our comprehensive week-by-week series below for the schedule of every single game this season, and read on for the projected Week 1 results. The NFC North is the latest installment of our projected season-by-season win totals series. Along with the NFC East and NFC West, this division is one of three divisional semi-conferences that allows just two playoff teams (each conference has four divisions). Each team in the division has 11-and-12 point over/under totals, the lowest total in the NFL. We're projecting something of a down year for the division, but because it's such a small group of teams, we're not expecting any major changes in the division standings. Here are the full projection for the 2016 season in the NFC North: Vikings Vikings Falcons 2015 record: 7-9 Total wins: 6.05-10.500 opponent average: 64.7-64.3.500 Wins by division: 3-2.500 Over/under total: 8.50-9.00.500 Playoffs?: No 4-12.444 2013 NFL rank: 9th 3rd 2013 team efficiency: 6.42-10.27.615 Opponents' 2013 league rank: 1st 6th Weighted DVOA (adds strength of schedule and past two seasons in to account for regression to the mean): -6.5% -0.1% Team efficiency: -4.5% -3.5% Bears Bears Jets 2015 record: 12-4 Total wins: 13.55-14.80.500 opponent average: 68.1-61.9.500 Wins by division: 0-1.667 Over/under total: 9.00-9.00.500 Playoffs?: Yes 10-16.458 2013 NFL rank: 2nd 5th 2013 team efficiency: 9.08-10.76.571 Opponents' 2013 league rank: 2nd 6th Weighted DVOA (adds strength of schedule and past two seasons in to account for regression to the mean): 3.9% 3.1% Team efficiency: 1.8% 2.1% Lions Lions Giants 2015 record: 10-6 Total wins: 10.95-9.55.500 opponent average: 63.1-61.0.500 Wins by division

7. Safety Google has developed an ingenious way to combat the click-bait click-bait clickbait and other assorted internet bollocks clogging up the crap flow of its homepage. It's a foolproof and equally enjoyable way to view real news. A new feature has been rolled out that will take you through a very simple process to verify that the headline and link at the bottom of that headline is reliable. Whenever you're reading a news headline, simply scroll down a bit and click the 'Verify' link below the article. If you're happy, you can send it to anyone you'd like. Other websites will simply do the same thing: we trust the Google News team, so trust us. Symptom-dependent cortical spreading depression in man. II. Brain surface mapping with magnetic stimulation. Surface EEG was recorded from surface electrodes attached to the scalp of a patient with visual aura to measure the anatomical distribution of the cortical spreading depression (CSD) correlated with the aura symptoms. Magnetic stimulation (MS) was delivered to the affected visual field in the awake state and the CSD initiated by MS. MS was delivered at a site from the posterior limb of the external capsule to the occipital pole. The location of the stimulation site was slightly posterior to the calcarine fissure, and the MS was delivered before and after the start of a visual aura. The thalamo-occipital region was activated prior to the visual aura, and the occipital pole was activated when a visual aura was preceded by a visual stimulus. These results suggest that (1) the visual aura was related to the functional activation of the calcarine fissure, (2) the auras with each symptom (gustation, blindness and seeing) may be related to the functional activation of the occipital pole with the arrival of the cortical wave, and (3) CSD may originate at different sites depending on the symptoms./* * Licensed to the Apache Software Foundation (ASF) under one * or more contributor license agreements.
