The free download link for Blackberry mobile operating system has brought the technology of mobiles to the next level. The up and coming Google Glass appears on the streets and brings mobile technology to another level. Mobility has always been the preferred way of life. This means mobile phones and computers are also common place. Google Glass and Blackberry have been extremely good examples of how mobile technology can be improved. They are more than machines. They can be a part of our lives and we can use them to make a difference. This is what Microsoft has realised and because of that, they have announced the next generation version of Windows mobile operating system. Windows 10 for phones and tablets is the right platform to make this happen. We have just started developing for Windows Phone. The current Windows smartphone and tablet operating systems are web based. This means that the web browser has to run the operating system. The Web browser is located in the Windows operating system. There is no way to run a separate web browser in a web based operating system. We were able to create the experience of our Windows Store apps in WP 8.1. However, many of our customers wanted to use the Metro UI and the Start Screen, they have seen in Windows 8.1. Because of this Microsoft has introduced the new UI in Windows 10. The overall theme of Windows 10 is to enable users to use Windows everywhere. It still has the traditional Windows, but has a new dual shell for tablets and phones. We can really see that Microsoft is going in the right direction as a platform for everything. Win10 is not the only Microsoft technology which will be needed in the future. Visual studio 2015 is the right platform to develop the applications for Microsoft. The visual studio support for Windows 10 will greatly facilitate the development and deployment of Windows 10 applications. The UI and look and feel should be similar to Windows 10 and XAML should be the core framework of the future 1c3b36666d

Differential activation of cyclooxygenase by lithium and valproic acid in human alveolar macrophages. Alveolar macrophages (AM) are known to play a major role in the pathogenesis of the pulmonary complications of affective illness. They synthesize and release prostaglandins, products of arachidonic acid metabolism that have been implicated in the pathogenesis of the emphysema that results from the consumption of marijuana and other agents. Cyclooxygenase (COX) catalyzes the conversion of arachidonic acid to prostaglandins that are important mediators of many physiological processes. We have studied the effect of Li+, a commonly prescribed, mood-stabilizing medication and VPA, an anticonvulsant, on the COX-mediated production of prostaglandins in AM. Although Li+ was found to decrease the production of PGF2 alpha by 100%, VPA increased it by 200%. Both drugs inhibited the release of the stable products of COX, PGE2 and 6-keto-PGE1, by 50% in the initial 8 h after treatment, then were not significantly different from control. Since both Li+ and VPA were found to inhibit the spontaneous production of PGE2 by AM, but only VPA inhibited the spontaneous production of 6-keto-PGE1, we conclude that the activation of COX by both agents is differentially mediated by multiple factors in AM. Li+ decreases the production of PGs by altering the expression of the COX enzyme in the
